In the speech which Elizabeth Cady Staunton delivered before the Woman's Council in Washington on Wednesday, she took the ground that before the advent of Christianity the supremacy of woman had lasted through many centuries undisputed, accepted as na tural and proper wherever it existed, and that it was the "introduction of the Christian religion, with the narrow Pauline doctrian, which made woman mentally and physically the inferior of man and lawfully in subjection to him." Such an assertion as this is likely to receive very emphatic contradiction from all who have very justly been under the impression that the condition of woman has been elevated in proportion to the spread of religious influences and the increased enlightenment which has followed. It is the spirit of infidelity and radicalism displayed in such an utterance as this, which is totally unwarranted by history, that has done most to bring the cause of woman's rights, as that term is popularly understood. into discredit.

According to Sir John MacDonald the issue to be decided by the approaching election in Canada is Loyalty vs. Treason. Tories under Sir John's leadership are high protectionists, while the Liberals, or "Grits, are for free trade with the United States, and, secording to Sir John, the difference between these two views constitutes the difference between loyalty and disloyalty to the crown, The "Loyalists," so called, will probably win as Sir John has, it is said, the Roman Catholic Church on his side, and the influence of that organization in the Dominion is preponderating. The contest has assumed an exceedingly interesting phase.

Two years ago James L. Babcock, of Ann Arbor, Michigan, was left a legacy of half million dollars, on condition that he marry within five years. He is so bent on securing the fortune that he refuses to enjoy his reprieve from the bonds of matrimony half the period allowed him, and has already managed to induce a very pretty young woman of Waukesha, Wisconsin, to agree to share it with him as his wife. Notwithstanding his voluntary surrender of liberty, however, a great many people are said to be envious of him.

THE TIMES is in receipt of the February number of the Harrisonian, a monthly issued by the Literary Society of the Southwest Virginia Institute at Glade Springs. This interesting periodical reflects a high degree of credit upon the excellent institution in connection with which it is published. Its contents, covering a wide range of subjects, are full of valuable matter, while its typographical character is admirable. We wish for it a career of uninterrupted prosperity.

OUR CITY FINANCES.

For many years past the city of Richmond has deservedly enjoyed such high credit that an idea seems to prevail among her citizens at large, similar to that which possessed the denizens of the plantations in old times, who were firmly of the opinion that 'marster has all the money.'

The city is rich, but not rich enough to be An examination of the annual report of the Auditor of the city for the year ending January 31, 1830, discloses the fact that the total balance of bonds issuable under the charter limit of the city was $565,181. Of this the Finance Committee have already authorized the sale of $250,000 to retire the floating debt, and $50,000 for culverts, while $100,000 is demanded for immediate payment on the City Hall, with a prospective expense of not less than $300,000, and perhaps $400 .-000 more, to complete and furnish that building. The amount of bends issuable under the increased assessments of 1891 will be about $720,000. We find this statement then: Surplus of bonds January 31,

Additional under increased as-sessments, about € 1.285.181

Do., prospective expenses, say...

Ralance available ... We start out, then, with this narrow limit of bonds to carry us through five years, or until another assessment will add to the resources of the city, except what may be derived each year from additional improvements. We have seen that, as against about $110,000 allowed for all street purposes in 1890, the Street Committee nowask for about $690,-600 for all such purposes. Of course this sum cannot be allowed them at once, but it indicates very plainly that the resources of this city must be carefully husbanded to meet the inevitable demands which will be pressed for expenditures not only on streets, but for other objects, before another assessment will increase our assets. If, then, we have urgent claims for expenses in directions purely and simply municipal, and which cannot be incurred otherwise, it does not seem good financiering for the city to undertake a new business which can certainly as well, and we think better, be done by private individuals who are prepared to put up the money for the purpose. In view of these facts it can hardly be denied that the investmittee and the House recessed till 8 o'clock this | ment of the city's capital in an electric plant is at this time very inexpedient.

The meeting held at the Young Men's Christian Association Tuesday night for the purpose of establishing a free library in Rich history of this city.

The necessity of such an institution is, or established before is a misfortune which was rapidly bringing in its train other evils. It has been, indeed, more than a misfortune; it. thousand people that affords so few opportunities for the employment of the leisure or idle moments of its citizens must er in its moral and intellectual with which to prosecute the war. The total development. The splendid record which sum to be distributed is $15,227,632. Richmond has as a religious and church going community is something to be proud of and should act as a stimulus in creating other agencies for the enlightenment, amusement, training and advancement of our people. It is a low plane on which to put an appeal for a hours each day or night, keep the young men and young women from other less intellectual if not more harmful amusements. But even in this aspect the appeal for assistance to enlarge the forces and scope of the Rosemary Library should not be made in vain. The theatre, which is even condemned by some, is the only attraction, except the Mo-Association, that we can offer to our young men as against the bar-rooms and billiard sacons of this town. It is not necessary to be | share. either a teetetaler or a fanatic on the liquor question to justify us in saying that this is a sad admission, and one which our public spirited citizens should hasten to rectify.

We have preferred to treat of this movement from what is usually called the practical man's standpoint. Other and much weightier arguments necessity for the immediate and successful establishment of a fully equipped public free library. Of these, more hereafter; for THE TIMES is enlisted for the fight, hopes to aid in every way the gentleman who have begun this enterprise, and extends to them sincere wishes for a speedy realization of their hones. That this will be secured the enthusiasm of the audience assembled at the Christian Association Hall, as well as the earnest advocacy of the speakers was a good augury. The audience was fully representative of all classes of our citizens, whilst the large number of ladies present was one of the best signs that a public library is recognized as a crying need both for the women and the men of Rich-

AN UNPLEASANT COMPARISON. At a recent meeting of the Tax-Payers' Association in Baltimore, Mr. Sylvester Baxter, of the Boston Herald, lectured upon the Municipal Management of Berlin, which, from his account, must indeed be Utopian in its perfection. In all points of local administration, as construction and cleaning streets, protection of poor, extinguishment of fires, management of city gas and water-works, Berlin must excel all other cities. The city debt is small, and owing to the substantial construction of the city, and the excellent fire department, the annual premium on insurance is only five or six cents on the hundred dollars.

In contrast with this glowing account, Professor Richard T. Ely, of Johns-Hopkins University, who followed Mr. Baxter, said that when in Berlin he made a study of its municipal government at the request of the United States minister, Andrew D. White, with the view of making a report, which he was unable finish. He was struck with the difference in the answers received from German officials on questions of municipal taxation and those of officials of the American cities he had visited on the same errand at the request of Governor Jackson. In the German city he found no "loafers" about the city hall, while in the cities of Richmond, Columbus, Charleston, Savannah and Madison, Wis., there was an abundance of them. In the one case the officials were intelligently posted as to the duties of their position and the needs of their city, whereas in the others, many hardly knew what they were in office for," We earnestly hope that the above report, which was taken from the Baltimore Sun. was inaccurate as to the city of Richmond. We are sure that there are none of our officers who could not give a satisfactory account of their duties, and we believe that the city of Richmond, at least, was inadvertently, if not inconsiderately, included in the list which was held up for reprobation. It shows, however, that municipal matters cannot be too carefully administered, and that a reputation for slackness of management, once acquired will be very hard to shake off.

LEGISLATION BY PROCLAMATION.

The existence of the Fifty-first Congress can now be counted by hours instead of days. and yet the House of Representatives are as eager as ever for mischief, and seem determined to omit no effort to vote the last dollar possible out of the public treasury. Already the appropriations decided upon show the enormous net increase of $102,000,000 over the sum appropriated by the previous Congress, and still the Republican majority is not satisfied. Now right at the close of the session a reso-Intion has been adopted in the House provid-720,000 | ing that the Shipping bill, which provides the expenditure of millions of dollars in the aggregate, shall be rushed through that body in two days, the measure to be discussed by paragraphs to-day until 5 o'clock this afternoon, when the previous question is to be called, all debate closed, and the bill passed. Mr. Mills, of Texas, was right when he characterized this method of procedure as 'passing acts of Congress by proclamation instead of legislation," and such is the record the country. The Force bill, the Tariff bill, and a number of other measures of like importance, all of which have imposed heavy additional taxation upon the people, have been so passed, and now it is proposed to still further add to the public burdens by railroading through in the short space of two days, by the application of the gag law, and with no possibility of consideration commensurate with its importance, the Shipping Subsidy

It is, perhaps, better for this Congress to continue to the end in the course it mapped out for itself at the beginning than otherwise. If, after the rebuke the Republican party received last fall, it had shown signs of repentance and an inclination to mend its ways, the people might have been somewhat disposed to overlook its shortcomings and been again deceived into entrusting power into Republican hands; but now the evident determination to contemptuously ignore the popular verdict must necessarily make Radicalism forever odious. Out of evil good often omes, and as it is impossible for the Fifty-first Congress to do much more mischief, it may be designs against the Treasury, and maintain its mond will, we trust, mark an epoch in the | policy of legislation by preclamation to the end. On Wednesday next it will expire, and, in all likelihood, it will be the last Republican should be, patent to all. That it has not been | Congress with which the country will ever be

The rest of the machinery is superb, with all of the latest improvements. The Truns binding is located at the corner of Bank and Tenth streets, and is one among the mest imposing edifices in the city. The interior of it is ermanented with the most costly material, with all the departments handsomely arranged and splendidly equipped for conducting a metropolitan newspaper like that of Tan Timus, one replete with public spirit and enterprise, and fearless in its advocacy of public measures. We tender most heartily our congratulations on the unprecedented success of The Timus along with our best wishes that it may continue as it is now, one of the leading representative journals in the South.
